Nana Star Book ~ Review

As a mom I know the importance of reading to your children and the effects that it can have; a love for reading! I started reading to my oldest daughter, Kayla, now 9 when she was just an infant. She is in love with books and can't get enough of them. It's great when a child is asked what they want as a gift and they reply with the title of a book.

I was introduced to a wonderful book series, Nana Star. The first book in this series we are introduced to Nana Star. She finds a lost baby star and promises to take him home..... (I won't tell you anymore, you will have to purchase the book to see what happens!)

This book is greatly illustrated and it really captured the attention of my youngest daughter, Kelsie. She holds on tight to her little Nana Star posable doll while listening to me read. She loves the book so much that it has become part of our night time routine, reading it at least 3 or 4 times before finally going to sleep. And the sweet little Nana Star doll has to sleep with her now as well!

What's really great about all the Nana Star books is that they all come with a cd that tells the story, so that your children can follow along. Kelsie loves listening to this in the car while following along in her book.

I really love books that keeps the child's imagination going even after the book is finished. This is one of those books. We can't wait to get next in the series, Nana Star and the Moonman!
